William was born in France but then his family moved to England. Now they live in a small town not far from Oxford. The name of the town is Banbury.

Banbury has a long history. The first building dates 1135. There are so many flowers in this town. They make the town centre very beautiful! Banbury has a lot of small shops but many people like to buy things in the market. Every Thursday and Saturday there is a big market in the Market Place. You can buy fresh fruit and vegetables, flowers, clothes, shoes and even pictures there. Usually at the market people drink coffee with sweet cakes. Tasty Banbury cakes are famous in Britain and even in other countries. People like buying them on holidays.

William likes Banbury very much. Every evening he walks in the park where a lot of roses grow. He meets his friends there and they play together. At weekends William and his father ride their bikes along the Oxford Canal.

William wants to move to Oxford when he grows up. He dreams to learn French at Oxford University and become a professor there. Then he thinks he will marry his classmate Betty and they will live in Oxford with their two children. Every weekend he, Betty and their children will go to Banbury to visit William's parents. His mother will make Banbury cakes for them and the family will have wonderful time together.
